INTRODUCTION

Welcome to the 2019 edition of “Understanding the food and beverage retailers in Hong Kong and Macau”. The purpose of this document is to provide you with an overview of the major food retail stores in Hong Kong and Macau, some of which also have a presence in Mainland China.

With a wealthy population of 7.451 million and a GDP of HK$ 2,845.3 billion¹, Hong Kong is a large, high-value and expanding market for Australian food and beverage products. Hong Kong is also a significant trading hub for re-exports into Mainland China, Macau and other neighbouring Asian markets.

Hong Kong’s lack of natural resources has resulted in a high reliance on imports with less than 5 per cent of food being locally produced. A majority of agriculture and food products are imported from Mainland China, USA and Brazil. Other countries such as Australia, Thailand, France, Netherlands and Japan also play important roles in supplying high quality food & beverage products to Hong Kong. The major categories of Australian food and beverage exports to Hong Kong are horticulture, wine, meat, seafood and dairy.

1 Census and Statistics Department, Government of Hong Kong SAR, Hong Kong in Figures, April 2019

Neighbouring Macau is a relatively small market, with a population of just over half a million. However, this market offers attractive opportunities for Australia owing to the enormous scale of its casino and hospitality industry. Macau’s 41 casinos and UNESCO world heritage sites attracted over 35.8 million visitors² in 2018, significantly increasing the final demand generated by this market.

Hong Kong and Macau are extremely competitive markets. Australia’s competitive edge is that it enjoys a positive reputation as a supplier of fresh, high quality and safe food and beverage products. Australia’s diverse climate also allows for a variety of food and agricultural products.

If your company is looking to export from Australia and visit Hong Kong and Macau, Austrade’s team of English and Chinese-speaking business advisers in Hong Kong is ready to assist you. You may find the contact details of our Austrade Hong Kong team at the end of this document.

I look forward to seeing you in Hong Kong and Macau.

Sincerely,

Sam Guthrie
Senior Trade and Investment Commissioner
Austrade Hong Kong and Macau

Australian food and beverage products are usually exported to Hong Kong through intermediaries such as Australia-based export agents and Hong Kong-based importers. For selected high volume products such as beef, citrus fruit, carrots and potatoes, large retailers and scalable food service operators will import directly to maximize their margins where possible.

Food and Beverage Retailing

- Bricks & Mortar - Supermarkets and convenience stores are the major channels for food and beverage distribution in Hong Kong, while gourmet & specialty stores provide more specific offerings to consumers. Traditional channels including wet markets and local grocery stores are popular amongst local consumers for fresh food items such as meat, seafood and vegetables.

- Online Retailing - With the improvement of local logistics capabilities in recent years, online grocery shopping is slowly gaining market share in Hong Kong. A number of local supermarket chains have started to offer online shopping and home delivery options to diversify from physical retailing. E-commerce platforms such as HKTV Mall and Ztore have been in Hong Kong since 2015, offering alternative options to Hong Kong consumers for grocery shopping.

Food Service

- Due to small volumes and frequent and consolidated orders, most of the local hotels, restaurants and fast food operators normally cannot afford to handle direct importation from a large number of individual suppliers overseas. Hong Kong importers and wholesalers generally undertake the distribution of food and beverages to trade buyers in this market sector.

With Macau’s proximity to Hong Kong and the lack of deep sea ports, most food and beverage products are transhipped to Macau through Hong Kong. Hong Kong importers and wholesalers work closely with Macanese retailers and food service buyers to meet their sourcing requirements.
